PLEASE NOTE:

The manufacturer shall supply copies of test reports supporting the claim that the product meets appropriate industry standards. If there is no industry standard for your particular product, BPI will work with you to identify a way to verify your product's efficacy. For all products requiring testing, tests shall be undertaken by a laboratory that has been accredited in North America to ISO 17025 by IAS (International Accreditation Service Inc) or A2LA (American Association for Laboratory Accreditation) or SCC (Standards Council of Canada) or a laboratory accredited by an international accreditation body which is part of ILAC (International Laboratory Accreditation Cooperation) to perform the test protocol for each test method. Incomplete test reports shall not be accepted.

All submittal documentation will be reviewed for completeness and compliance to BPI requirements when received from the manufacturer.

The manufacturer shall be contacted for clarification or to supply missing information or documents once the initial review is complete.

A technical review will be completed within thirty days of submission of the application and supporting documents. The manufacturer will be notified if their product has been approved for listing by BPI or given a reason as to why the product has not been approved.
